1) Survey on EwaGlos: help us to improve the glossary

From 2013 to 2015 a consortium of seven institutions - supported by associated partners and external experts - developed a richly illustrated glossary of conservation terms for wall paintings and architectural surfaces, the so called EwaGlos (European Illustrated Glossary of Conservation Terms for Wall Paintings and Architectural Surfaces).

The consortium is currently undertaking a survey to gather feedback about the experiences of the users in order to publish an improved edition if necessary. We kindly invite you to complete this online survey. On the basis of your feedback the consortium will be able to identify the areas in which the glossary can be improved.

Soon you will find the survey on the Ewaglos Website.

2) New electronic publications for conservators

Books

Thomas Brachert´s addenda to his lexicon

With the published addendum to the renowned "Lexikon historischer Maltechniken", Thomas Brachert published the long-awaited appendix of his extensive collection of materials on the history of art techniques of 2001. He was able to include other historic written sources as well as new research from colleagues. The printed book is not available anymore and is now published as e-publication.

This paper wants to find an answer to the influences and conditions of the removal, focusing on different profiles and the deep integration of concrete cubes. To generate the temperatures and their course in a simulation, a calculation software of thermal bridges was used. In the study, the surface temperature is documented with the help of a thermal imaging.
