Dear newsletter recipients,

Corona still determines our work very much: we had to postpone our next events once more. Therefore, we will focus more on the expansion of our online courses for the growing number of users.

You are welcome to use this newsletter and distribute it in full or in part.

International Symposium THE FRAGMENT IN THE DIGITAL AGE Opportunities and risks of new conservation-restoration techniques 6th May - 8th May 2021, HAWK, Hildesheim (Germany)

Works of art are mostly handed down in fragments. The handling of the fragment is therefore one of the central tasks of conservator-restorers.

This interdisciplinary conference will focus on what the new digital possibilities mean for the preservation and mediation of the historical fragment, since experts from various disciplines currently perceive a gap between the increasing importance and professionalization of the visual reconstruction of the historical on the one hand and the theoretical foundation of such activities on the other.

A total of 120 registrations have already been received. The assembly hall is huge and offers 199 individual chairs. If the legal hygiene regulations allow fewer seats at the time of the conference, we will have to cut back and allow online participation

For information about the conference, the abstracts of the selected lectures and posters, see here.

The conference will be held in German and English. A simultaneous translation will not be possible.

1st October 2020, online
Fragment conference:
Short introduction to the conference topic and the poster section by Ursula Schädler-Saub with the publication of all posters.

We will also participate in the European Day of Restoration with this offer.

Diagnosis of the decorative plasters of tombs from the Porta Nocera Necropolis at the archeological site of Pompeii, Italy: Development of a methodological approach

This master thesis focuses on the diagnosis of the decorative plasters of a group of five tombs built during the Julio-Claudian dynasty (27 BC – 57 AC). As past interventions have focused on the symptoms rather than on the causes of deterioration, the author proposes to change track. The strategy of intervention aims at favouring a mechanical stabilisation of the plasters over interventions carried out so far with grouts. The author suggests to limit the use of restoration mortars by reconsidering the "clamp" method used for centuries in Pompeii to conserve plasters and wall paintings, while replacing the former use of metal with modern materials such as basalt fibres.

Fünf Aufsätze über mehrschichtige Kultureinflüsse in Grenzregionen, über die kulturelle Verbundenheit Europas und das Stiften einer europäischen Identität. (The role of heritage management in the European Cultural Heritage Year 2018. Five essays on multi-layered cultural influences in border regions, on Europe's cultural ties and the creation of a European identity)

For years the political situation in Europe has been unstable. Among other things, there is a danger of instrumentalising (architectural) monuments and cultural heritage by emphasizing culture as national in order to give a romanticized but false image of the past. How can these dangers be counteracted? A special focus is the role of monument conservation. The core of its field of activity is the research, preservation and communication of monuments. If they are used to convey a false image of the past, what is the role of the preservation of historical monuments?

Ursula Schädler-Saub: Dealing With Authenticity In The Conservation And Restoration Of Wall Paintings And Architectural Surfaces

Authenticity is a key term in the modern theory and practice of heritage preservation. This article presents three case studies related to the conservation-restoration of wall paintings and architectural surfaces in Germany and Italy and uses them to clarify some central theoretical issues, intertwining them with practical needs and demands. In order to avoid the use of the term authenticity as a catch-all that can mean everything or nothing, the relationship with case studies can bring awareness about the broad palette of these approaches and how the theory and practice of heritage preservation are always interconnected.

September 28th to November 22th 2020

All our online courses will start on September 28th.

New German courses:

Jennifer Oster M.A.:

Kirchenräume und ihr Klima. Heizen, Lüften, Ausstattung schützen (Church rooms and their climate. Heating, ventilation, equipment protection)

Prof. Dr. Gerdi Maierbacher-Legl, Susanne Karius M.A. and Christine Fiedler M.A.:

Konsolidieren von Holz - Möglichkeiten und Grenzen struktureller Festigung (Consolidation of wood - Possibilities and limits of structural consolidation)

Prof. Dr. Ursula Schädler-Saub:

Wie sollen wir handeln? Theorie und Ethik der Restaurierung und ihre Bedeutung für die Praxis Neu: Teil 2: Grundlagen der Restaurierung und der Denkmalpflege von K. F. Schinkel bis C. Brandi

(How should we act? Theory and ethics of conservation and its significance in practice

New: Part 2: Fundamentals of restoration and monument preservation from K. F. Schinkel to C. Brandi)

Our service:

The Corona pandemic has led to the fact that we have many more learners from outside and from our restoration courses in Hildesheim who, through their questions, support us in our efforts to further develop the courses for you in the most practical way possible.

Additionally we have now been able to permanently recruit a restorer, Christine Fiedler M.A., to tutor our wood courses, who specialises in the conservation/restoration of furniture and the like.

At the suggestion of the RiA (restorers in training) at the VDR, we are giving them the same discounts as students at other universities.

Best regards
